

Freezing Rain Sunday Night - Monday

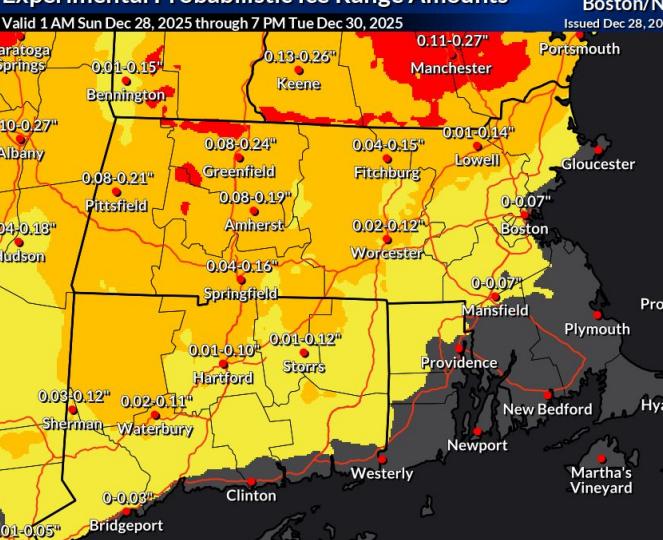

Boston/Norton, MA

WEATHER FORECAST OFFICE

OVERVIEW:

- Low pressure passing west of Southern New England will bring a period of freezing rain Sunday night into the early part of Monday.
- A light glaze of ice for locations along I-95, but more significant icing is possible (up to a quarter-inch) in interior Southern New England where colder surface air will take longer to warm.

TIMING	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Developing Sunday evening from west to east from 7-10PM, changing to rain between 12- 4am Monday morning.
HAZARDS & IMPACTS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Difficult travel, especially overnight to Monday morning commute, due to icy roads and sidewalks. Downed trees, powerlines & icy roads/sidewalks in upper CT & Merrimack Valleys where more significant icing is possible.
NWS ALERTS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Winter Weather Advisory expanded to include the north shore, Boston, and western portions of RI.
FORECAST CHALLENGES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> How long it will take to scour out sub-freezing temperatures in low-lying spots across the interior Will the south shore stay below freezing long enough to see freezing rain
POST-EVENT OUTLOOK	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Rain with temps near 50F Monday. Strong winds and frigid temperatures Monday night to Tuesday.
NEXT BRIEFING	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> By 6PM Sunday .